

SBA Michael Fox is the founder and President of Hawaii Modular Space, Inc. (HMSI) – the State leader in the modular building industry. HMSI is primarily involved in the rental and retail of mobile and modular buildings, office trailers, and storage containers. Modular buildings provide a viable alternative to conventional construction in that quality, price-competitive structures can be built in a quicker timeframe. HMSI serves a variety of industries such as schools, government agencies, construction firms, hospitals, transportation firms, and special events. Using experience gained as a sales manager for a leading modular building industry firm in the 1980s, Fox started HMSI in 1987 with a vision of someday becoming the industry leader in Hawaii. Fox has been able to realize his vision through his own dedication as well as seeking out opportunities for growth and expansion. HMSI now operates on Oahu, Maui, and the Big Island and has been able to increase its staff from no employees in 1987 to the present staffing level of 30 full-time employees. . .

Fox has also given back to the community through his involvement as a board director for Pualani Manor and Hale Pauahi, which are non-profit housing corporations providing housing for low-income families. He also formed Makana Hui, a charitable organization that annually donates $10,000 to worthy charities
